French Said To Have Been Repulsed—No Change In Eastern Situation Mentioned

By Associated Press

Berlin, Jan 6—The German military authorities today gave out a statement on the progress of the war as follows

In the western arena of the war the French continued yesterday their systematic bombardment of villages situated behind our front They seem indifferent to the killing of their own countrymen and to the destruction of French homes In any event this bombardment causes us very little trouble we captured several of the enemy's trenches and made prisoners of two officers and 200 men

The French again obtained a foothold early yesterday on the much fought for heights west of Sennheim (Cernay) in upper Alsace, but they were again driven off after a strong bayonet attack They have not dared to attempt further advances Fifty Alpine Chasseurs were taken prisoners by us

In the eastern arena of the war there were no changes yesterday on our eastern frontier or in northern Poland In Poland, west of the Vistula, our troops penetrated as far as the branch of the Sucha river after having captured several of the enemy's points of support, 1400 prisoners and nine machine guns were left in our hands The situation on the eastern bank of the River Pilica remains unchanged

Chicago, Jan 6 For the first time in 1915 the wheat market today started at a decline as compared with the previous night Opening quotations were down 7 8 and 3 4 to 1 5 8 and 1 3 4 The reaction was attributed largely to a disposition among leading trades to exercise decided precaution in basing on such a radical advance as had been witnessed during the past week

200 HURT IN SUBWAY FIRE

ACCIDENT ON TRAIN CAUSES ONE DEATH AND MANY ARE INJURED

SYSTEM IS TIED UP

May Not Resume For Several Days—Passengers Rescued Through Manholes

By Associated Press

New York, Jan. 6.—New York's subway was visited by fire and panic today which sent some 200 persons to hospitals, caused the death of one woman and demoralized the transportation system of the city. The fire was said to have been due to an electrical explosion in a conduit between 50th and 59th street stations.

The noise, flame and smoke terrified the 700 or more passengers of the two downtown trains stalled nearby and in their efforts to escape scores were badly burned, many were knocked unconscious and still others were overcome by smoke.

The subway service, according to Commissioner Maxwell of the public service commission may be tied up several days If this proves true it will mean that more than a million persons a day carried by subway trains will be diverted to the surface and elevated systems and cause a congestion without parallel in the history of the city

At first it was thought there had been a terrible catastrophe and reports reached police headquarters that at least a score had been killed The entire fire department and all the ambulances in the city together with the pulmotor squad were rushed to the scene.

Hear Screams For Help.

Smoke was pouring out of the subway entrances manholes and ventilators and screams for help could be heard It turned out however, that while the police and firemen had all they could do in bringing out the unconscious including a score or more of women who fainted, the early reports had been exaggerated It was more than three hours after the accident that the last passenger was rescued

During this time, in the streets nearby there was a continuous procession of ambulances and private automobiles removing the injured to various hospitals The accident was described by the police as the worst in the history of the subway The entire fire fighting force of Manhattan, every ambulance in the borough and every pulmotor that could be found were brought to the scene The fact that scores of persons were unconscious led to the early report that many had been killed

Starts During Tieup

Sixty persons were taken unconscious from the scene of the fire to the Flower Hospital, the Polyclinic Hospital received 200 Ventilator gratings were taken up from the sidewalks around the 50th and 59th street stations and many of the injured removed through the ventilator shafts

The fire broke out in a subway train which was on a long line of rush hour trains held up between the 50th and 59th street stations by an early accident in the power house which tied up the service

There were reports that there had been a collision but although some of the panic stricken passengers referred to a smash up the police had not definitely established such a report It was shortly before 9 30 o'clock when whiffs of smoke began to curl from the manholes along Broadway between the two stations The spot where the fire burned fiercest was opposite 56th street Hampered by their efforts to reach the blaze the firemen dug into the pavement with their axes

Dig Through Pavement.

They succeeded in making a hole above the subway at 53rd street From this opening belched smoke and flames Hose was passed through the opening and even hand extinguishers were used For ten blocks the streets were lined with ambulances that came from over the city A cordon of police was thrown to hold back the crowds of spectators

All manhole covers were removed as well as the ventilator gratings In the openings thus made firemen placed their hose, other squads of firemen crawled through the blinding smoke into the tube itself and worked in relays

Give Good Account of Themselves In Alsace Where French Retain Upper Hand

By Associated Press

Paris Jan 6 The official statement given out this afternoon in Paris by the war department reads as follows

The Belgian army delivered but without success two attacks in the regions of the dunes and the region northeast of St Georges On the west front to the north of Lys and from the Lys to the Oise there has been nothing except artillery fighting

In the valley of the Aisne and in the sector of Rheims our batteries gained the upper hand over those of the enemy reducing them to silence At a point northwest of Rheims it is reported that certain of our troops have made an advance of about 100 yards In the Argonne there developed a very spirited action which permitted us to retake 200 yards of trenches in the forest of Lagrurie at the same place where there was recently a slight giving away, as previously reported From Bagatteli and from Mountain Madame there were delivered two violent German attacks each of which was repulsed A complete German regiment was engaged in each action

We blew up by exploding a mine 800 yards of German trenches half of which we subsequently occupied From the Argonne to the Vosges the bad weather has continued There is fog and mud At different points along this front there have been fairly spirited artillery exchanges In the forest of Lepetre near Pont a Mousson we have continued to gain ground

Operations In Alsace.

In the region of Thann (upper Alsace) in spite of a violent cannonading we retained the gains achieved the night before at Steinbach as well as in the trenches in the southwest and to the northwest of this village The enemy succeeded in reoccupying one of our former trenches on the eastern flank of a nearby height, the summit of which however remains in our possession

It should be set forth that in the Argonne, near the ravine of Courte Chasse at the point where we blew up the German trenches, the attacking regiment commanded by Lieut Col Garibaldi delivered a vigorous attack against the breach made by the explosion The Italians captured 120 prisoners including twelve under-officers and took one machine gun and one caisson The chief adjutant of this regiment Constantine Garibaldi brother of Lieut Col Garibaldi was killed during the attack

LOCAL PRICE FOR WHEAT HIGHEST ON RECORD TODAY

Farmers Getting $1.25 Per Bushel—Futures Market Opens at Decline, However

When local dealers paid Wichita county farmers $1 25 a bushel for wheat here today they paid the highest price reached by that cereal in this county The previous high record was in the famous Leiter corner when for a few days some wheat sold probably as high as $1 10 or $1 15 a bushel Although near Chicago where dealers could have some hope of getting the grain into Chicago in a few days the price was higher than now dealers in this section of the country were afraid to make contracts at the high figures

The present rise has been steady and gradual and fortunately the farmers have been able to get the benefit of it The future market in Chicago opened lower this morning indicating that the advance in price will be checked temporarily at least

CRUSHING BLOW IS DEALT TURKS BY RUSSIAN ARMY

Double Victory Apparently Won In Caucasus Relieving Danger To Egypt

FRENCH CONTINUE TO GAIN IN UPPER ALSACE

Czar's Forces Believed To Be Preparing To Strike Heavy Blow In Hungarian Territory

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 6.—The crushing blow the Russians appear to have dealt the Turks in the Caucasus and the farther advance of the French in Alsace on the road to Muelhausen continue to hold the foreground in the war news today in the absence of any other important developments east or west.

It is felt in England that the renewed rout of the Turkish invaders of the Caucasus with the defeat of their plan to seize the Russian fortress of Kars gives the Ottoman forces such a setback that the much-discussed invasion of Egypt is now virtually out of the question. At the same time, the pressure on the Russians from the east has been so far relieved as to preclude any necessity of withdrawing Russian forces from the Polish and Galician fronts for service in the Caucasus.

Petrograd reports that the Turkish army defeated at Ardahan (40 miles northwest of Kars), which is distinct from the forces reported to have been crushed or captured at Sari Kamysh, was today completely surrounded and being harassed by Russian cavalry and "doomed to inevitable extermination." It was added that the Turks were fighting with great bravery and determination, but against hopeless odds as the roads along which they sought to retreat were blocked by deep snows. This is the defeat of a Turkish army corps which Grand Duke Nikolas referred to yesterday in his message to General Joffre, commander-in-chief of the French forces.

This dispatch announced also the capitulation of the entire ninth Turkish artillery corps at Sari Kamysh and the fact that such a communication has been exchanged between the allied leaders in the east and the leaders in west is taken in London to indicate that the Russian victory is netiher exaggerated nor premature.

There virtually has been no change west of Warsaw, but the British observers think Russia is giving indications of a plan to strike a heavy blow in Hungary.

With Bukowina occupied the time is ripe for an invasion of Transylvania, an eastern province of Hungary, bordering on Roumania. Nearly 3,000,000 of the population of this territory are of Bukowinan stock. According to a contention of the allies, these people may be expected to seize the opportunity to throw off the rule of Austria-Hungary and unite with Russia.

Roumania has abandoned her neutrality but a warning has gone out to her reservists to hold themeslves in readiness for service. Developments soon may be expected. The advance guard of Russians along the Roumanian frontier has been made up of men who speak the Roumanian language and have Roumanian sympathies. According to advices reaching London these soldiers everywhere are being received with friendliness. A dispatch from Paris state that developments of "the highest importance" are imminent in Roumania. A dozen French and British newspaper correspondents left Paris today for Roumania by way of Bulgaria.

According to the Anson Enterprise there were at least 20000 bales of unpicked cotton in Jones county on January 1st and what is still better the recent rains have not seriously damaged the unpicked cotton Doubtless there are several counties in the State with thousands of bales of unpicked cotton remaining in the field and so long as that is true there should be plenty of work for the unemployed in those counties

Gov Elect Ferguson among the many other blessings he would like to see come to Texas in the year 1915 is that the stork shall visit more homes than for any previous, and to encourage the big bird in his work he offers a $10 prize for the first twins born in the year 1915 and a prize of $10 for the first triplets

While there are 1 300 000 automobile owners in the United States there are only 377 598 people who have an income amounting to $2 000 per annum Of these 81 982 reside in the city of New York This information is gained from the Journal of Commerce and Finance and doubtless it got it from the record of those who paid an income tax last year But mind you all persons who pay an income tax cannot afford automobiles And it is furthermore evident that lots of people owning automobiles have in some way or other managed to escape the income tax collector

Todays dispatches tell that business throughout the United States is taking on new life Factories that have been closed for four months, or to be exact, sonce the European war started, are opening again furnishing work to thousands of unemployed On the Chicago market May wheat was selling for $1 34 14 which is just 50c less than 1898 during the Leiter wheat corner deal when wheat advanced to $1 85 but it only stayed there a few days Now it is different The price had gone up steadily since the European wr started and it looks like that the longer the war lasts the higher will the price of wheat and other fondstuffs go There are good times ahead for the wheat farmer There are also good times ahead for those who work in the factories The year 1915 promises well for the United States, even if it did come in on Friday and will face the same kind of hoodoo in going out

Statistics show that while the people of the United States are becoming more and more educated, crime is also on the increase more in proportion than education They also show that among the criminals the proportion of persons of fair good educational training is larger than ever before Therefore one is almost forced to the conclusion that an education does not necessarily make a good moral citizen The present congress will no doubt pass an immigration bill with the literacy test incorporated and it is thought President Wilson will not approve it for aliens coming to this country may or may not be educated but whether educated or not they should be required to reside in this country a sufficient number of years to give them a correct idea of how the American government is conducted before they are permitted to become citizens Our own American born citizens are not permitted to vote or hold office until they are 21 years of age There are thousands of American boys between the ages of 16 to 20 years who are in every way better qualified to exercise an intelligent vote than those coming in from foreign countries and who under our present immigration laws are granted citizenship papers and are permitted to vote and hold office at only a very short residence in this country There is as much reason in asking as there is in educating some of our best and most successful citizens who neither read or write On the other hand some of the worst criminals are persons who are highly educated many of them being able to speak and write fluently several languages

WHERE THE LAW IS INADEQUATE

(Baltimore Sun)

All that Justice Lamar has said in the Leo M Frank case is that in his judgment there is probable cause for the appeal or in other words there are constitutional questions involved upon which Frank has the right to ask the supreme court of the United States to pass

points finally in his favor and Frank should be released a question may rise it is said as to the power of the State to indict and try him a second time That he should be put in jeopardy again after having been convicted on palpably insufficient evidence at the first trial and on the strength of popular sentiment rather than on the strength of the State's case would involve a certain hardship and injustice And yet what Frank has been asking is not clemency but a fair trial not mercy but justice And if an impartial judicial investigation could be secured, Frank himself might prefer a positive vindication to an escape which left a doubt in any mind Whether such a trial could be obtained in view of the local feeling excited by the persistent efforts in Frank's behalf and in view of the prejudice engendered at the first trial may be regarded as doubtful and he could scarcely be blamed should he be set at liberty if he declined to submit voluntarily to another ordeal of the same kind

The whole case, from its beginning has furnished illustrations of the inadequacy of the law under certain conditions

COLQUITT'S POLITICAL DEMISE.

Little Oscar B Colquitt sitting in the governor's swivel chair,
With his uneasy political conscience and an idle hour to spare,
Bethinks himself there is some mischief his idle hands can do,
Before the final hour that he must bid the State House adieu

Little Oscar likes public applause he loves the 'lime light'
But to remain longer in the public eye he must begin to fight,
Must attack the reputation of a statesman be he living or dead,
Even risk the consequences of a blow at the Nation's noble head

I have all to gain and nothing much to lose, said little Oscar C,
If I would match the Culberson boom and hive the senatorial bee,
So here goes for a chance shot at the Honorable Woodrow Wilson,
If it misses the mark it will make Republicans sit up and listen'

And for the time being I will feature the top line newspaper column
Making my Democrat opponents mad as blazes and wiseacres solemn
True I risk my political reputation but prospects make me smile
For little Oscar Colquitt's name will remain upon the newpaper file

—OBSERVER

Wichita Falls Texas

COLQUITT'S RE-EXPLOSION.

On the eve of his retirement from office Governor Colquitt of Texas issues a statement in which he scathingly arraigns the administration of President Wilson branding it as the greatest failure of the day, the tariff law as a blow to the country, existing trust laws as 'fakes' and the foreign policy of the United States as imbecile

This is the same Gov Colquitt who did everything he could to involve his country in a war with Mexico and whose wild and blamboyant statements and actions so embarrassed the administration that its policy of watch right thinking men the world over, was seriously hampered The contrast between the patient, intelligent course of the president in that crisis with the impatient, erratic unbalanced wild and wooly course of the governor of Texas, caused the latter to lose his self control His latest effusion indicates that he has not yet found that self control without which no man can creditably administer a great office He that ruleth his own spirit is greater than he that taketh a city saieth Holy Writ, and his is not a bad answer to the folly of the governor of Texas

It is a pity that the South should have to suffer from the intemperance of such men as Governor Colquitt His statement appears in many papers all over the country and it will injure the credit of this section for many will believe what he says it was not a manly thing to do, it did not require any courage to do it and Texas should be ashamed of her governor for having done it

Let's all determine to make 1915 the banner year for building a greater Wichita Falls and the best way to do this is to become a paying and working member of our Chamber of Commerce There is lots to be done but without organization little can be accomplished

DO WE NEED A LARGER ARMY AND NAVY?

Over one half the world is at war today Perhaps if America had a standing army of a quarter or half million fighting men and a navy three or four times as large as our present we too might be at war with some other power There is two ways of looking at this matter however While there are few who think we are missing a lot by not being better prepared for war the great majority believe that being unprepared is really the greatest blessing that we can hope to enjoy So far as we know there is no power that has the slightest idea of making war on us or taking any of our present possessions and as we want nothing more than we already have what's the use of arming the people with something there is absolutely no use for—that is a larger navy and larger standing army? Wichita Falls Times

That's what we say about increasing our army and navy If they are increased then we are sure to get in a scrap with somebody just as sure as 1 2 are 3 What do we want with an army and navy except for that purpose? Do you think that we will do it anyway? You can bet your last $10 dollar that Uncle will take care of himself—Abilene Reporter

Is this paper's candid observation that most people who protest they are "neutral in this European war" affair have worked themselves up to the point where they don't care which

of the allies shall be permitted to lick Germany

Emperor William and King George have replied to Pope Benedict's suggestion that the warring powers exchange prisoners of war who are incapacitated for further fighting and both have agreed to comply with the suggestion The other powers will likely make the same arrangement for exchange of prisoners

Three years of war has brought a famine in many Mexican cities That is just about what is going to happen in Europe, but it is not going to take three years to bring it about The men who should be on their farms are forced to fight and the soil for the most part, lies idle and produces next to nothing It may take something like a famine to bring that war to a close

As yet England has not replied to the complaint of the American government regarding the interference on the part of England of American shipping interests Doubtless she will be in no hurry about the matter In the meantime, however, Germany wants some of our cotton bad enough to offer from 18c to 20c per pound for it, but it is impossible to send it to Germany England, however, is getting all the American cotton she wants and at practically her own price. Usually the freight on a bale of cotton from an American port to Bremen is only about $1 50 Now it takes $18 75 to pay the ocean freight on a bale of cotton from Savannah Ga, to Bremen From inland points the rail freight, together with insurance and ocean freight is agout $30 per bale If our ships were permitted to traverse the seas the cotton producers of the South would today be receiving above 10c per pound for their cotton Yet there are some people who can't understand why the price of cotton is below the cost of production

A few days ago The Times editorially said that the Farmers Union at its last convention had refused to endorse Governor Elect Ferguson's farm tenant plank as advocated by him during the campaign, and as endorsed by the State convention at El Paso It now appears The Times is mistaken President W D Lewis of the Farmers' Union says the Farmers' Union, in its convention, took no action in the matter of Governor Elect Ferguson's platform in any way whatever, and that the editorial referred to does an injustice to the organization he represents The Times is glad to make the correction It was lead into the error by an article that apepared in another newspaper

THE PROGRESSIVE SPIRIT.

It is the intention of the Chamber of Commerce to raise about $2 000 per month during the year 1915 to be used for the purpose of bringing to Wichita Falls more people more capital and more manufacturing enterprises, and with this end in view soliciting committees have been appointed at a meeting of the directors held this morning whose duty it will be to call on every enterprising citizen of this city tomorrow for the express purpose of soliciting membership to the Chamber of Commerce together with the amounts such members will obligate themselves to pay each month towards the maintenance of the organization and after the list has been made up it will be published together with the amount each member agrees to contribute To those of our citizens who have kept a close watch on the workings of our Chamber of Commerce there is not the least doubt but that without the efforts put forth by it during the past six or seven years Wichita Falls would now be in the class of villages and towns or with only about one half her present population and wealth—Wichita Falls Times

It is just such a spirit as this that builds cities And this brings us back to where we were several months ago What would a town or city village hamlet, burg or any other place where people live be without a newspaper that was a continual booster? And again what would the aforementioned places be without an enterprising and pushing commercial club or chamber of commerce? It takes everybody pulling together all the time to build a city—Abilene Reporter

The government rain gauge shows that a little more than 25 inches of rain fell in Wichita Falls during the year 1914 which is about four inches above the average for this section of country during the past 20 years There is now a splendid season in the ground and wheat crops are looking fully as good as they were last year at this time Those who have the reputation of making pretty good estimates say the acreage planted to wheat in Wichita county this year is right around 70 000 acres If the yield is to be as good as last year it will mean more than one million bushels of wheat for Wichita county in 1915

COLQUITT AND THE EL PASO PLATFORM

In jumping on President Wilson and the National administration Governor Colquitt gets entirely on the El Paso Democratic platform, in the writing of which he played an important part That document declares

"We cordially and heartily endorse the National Democratic administration and congratulate the people of the United States upon the patriotic fidelity with which the administration has kept faith with the people and has passed into living laws promises made by our party in its national platform at Baltimore We believe that having so thoroughly and persistently kept the faith, that administration is entitled to and will receive the endorsement, support and assistance of all Democrats, and these we gratefully pledge for all the Democrats of Texas

Governor Colquitt participated in pre convention conferences of Mr Ferguson's friends, at which this platform was drafted

He was a delegate to the El Paso convention that adopted it

He was an influential factor in that convention and could have been heard at any time he desired to speak

He heard the convention endorse the president and his administration and "gratefully pledge all the Democrats of Texas" to the support and endorsement of the National administration

He did not exempt himself from the list of those pledged by his party

At the time that endorsement was given the tariff law and the federal reserve law had been enacted, the Mexican policy of the administration had been developed and its foreign policy was well known

The governor heard all these endorsed and sat mute if, indeed, he did not give affirmative assent

Four and a half months after all these things happened the governor circulated Texas and Northern papers and press associations with a bitter denunciation of the administration and the things it had accomplished

Why did not the governor turn loose his wrath against the president at El Paso?

Why did he wait four and one half months?

The date of the next senatorial election is four and one-half months nearer now than it was when the El Paso convention met, do we hear some one say?

You guessed right the first time—Waco Morning News

THE MEASURE OF DAMAGES.

A court in affirming a judgment for damages in the sum of $25 000 in favor of a station agent against the Canadian Pacific Railroad for false arrest announced the following rule for measuring the damages

"Can it be said that the mental distress of an intelligent industrious honest man, earning $1 200 per annum is to be measured by a standard different from what would apply to a man of larger earning capacity? Indeed if there were to be distinction in such respects in cases of this character they would more likely be in favor of the humbler man because he would probably have much greater difficulty in overcoming the effects of prosecution than would a man of greater force and power

"It is apparent that the court was correct in holding that if any distinction should be made in the amount awarded, as between a rich man and an humbler one, it should be in favor of the latter That the man who has an abundance of wealth is never so seriously handicapped by anything which reflects upon his personal reputation as is his less fortunate neighbor, is substantiated by common observation This results from the circumstance that the wealthy man can not be impoverished by losing employment which provides sustenance for himself and family as the result of injury to his reputation as also from the well known tendency of numerous persons in every community to overlook and forgive his transgressions and faults because he is financially independent of the opinions of his neighbors There are in many persons the dormant attribute of the wolf which enjoys the sport of setting upon and devouring the weak and helpless of the species to cringe in pusillanimous cowardice in the presence of the strong

The Louisville Courier Journal commenting upon the decision in question gives additional reasons supporting its soundness

A $1 200 a year man could not have rehabilitated himself as easily as Chas W Morse a banker who was sent to jail on for dishonest dealing, and who secured his release by hiring high priced lawyers and procuring medical testimony of the usual sort to persuade the President of the United States that he was on his deathbed No sooner did he get out of prison with the fact of his comparatively good health notorious and the stigma of his method of escape added to that which attached to his conviction then he returned to business and proceeded as if nothing had happened, in his role of money maker

It is a hackneyed saying that a poor man has nothing but his reputation but truth is always old The Shakespearean comparison between the poor man's purse and his reputation still stands as an example of fact crisply stated But the rich man robbed of his reputation is not always left poor He might in many instances reverse the terms of the Shakespearean assertion

The case of Lorimer who was hoot ed out of the United States Senate for accepting a bribe is another illustration of the fact that the destruction of the reputation of a prominent or wealthy man does not destroy his earning capacity or the confidence of people in his integrity or character as is shown by the single circumstance that hundreds trusted him after his conviction of a heinous crime, with all the money they could hand into his bank If Lorimer had been a poor man and he was hissed out of the senate those who turned their fortunes to him in Chicago so cheerfully would have ostracized criticised and browbeaten him until they forced him to commit suicide or leave the country Under no circumstances would any of them trusted him for car fare or the price of a cup of coffee

Strange of course but it can not be denied that human nature has many strange angles and this is well known enough of frowning to the great and persecuting the humble until the grave closes on its victim is the strangest of them all—Austin American

Great Britain has lost another one of her splendid ships The sad part about it was that about 700 of her crew went down with the ship Cause—a submarine or mine

In another column of todays Times will be found a list of members of the Chamber of Commerce If your name or the name of your business house does not appear among the list, try to get it there just as soon as possible Our Chamber of Commerce has done great things for Wichita Falls and with the hearty and loyal support given in 1915 it can be made to do as much as it ever has in one single year

Local wheat was selling on the streets Saturday for $1 20 per bushel That looks good to the wheat farmer who held his wheat It also looks good to the wheat farmers in this section of the State who have growing wheat crops The chances that the price will not be less than it now is, and there is a strong probability that it will go higher—to something like $1 50 per bushel

Texas had just four representatives in congress who voted to submit to the vote of the states a prohibition amendment to the constitution and the congressman from this district wasn't one of the four—Bonham News

John H Stephens was one of the four It makes us feel prouder than ever of him though a man's fitness for office should not be based alone on how he stands on prohibition There have been some candidates who have wormed their way into office by riding in on the pro question that should have been left at home It is the same way with some who rode into office on the liquor question As a result the districts they are supposed to represent have no representation and would be better off if they had not elected them

It will not do to regard Mr Culberson as devoid of aspiration to remain in the United States Senate Those who hope to get his place are working to get ready to measure strength with him in 1916 It is not probable that the Senator's recent utterance on the subject came as a surprise to rivals There will be an interesting contest that of 1916—with Bailey Brooks Culberson Colquitt and Henry (we have named them in alphabetical order) and possibly Thomas in the field for the race—Waco Tribune

With five in the race Culberson will get a clean majority over all He need only say the word and the Democrats of Texas will do the rest Culberson has served Texas well and faithfully The people want him to serve them right where he is as long as he will consent to do so At least that is about the way 60 per cent of the people in this part of Texas feel about it

Only one sixth of the men of legal age voted in Texas last November This is a sorry commentary on patriotism and love of country There are too many people who don't care or get too busy with their own affairs to go to the polls These are the ones who have no right to knock about the way public affairs are conducted—Sherman Democrat

The chances are that if every man of legal age in the State had voted at the November election the results would not have been changed The Democratic primary election was held in July at which election the people of Texas selected their nominees for public office—county and state And at this election more than twice the number of votes were polled than at the November or general election though only Democrats were supposed to be at the primary election while all qualified voters had the right to vote at the November election

A news item is authority for the statement that Russia has ceded to Japan one half of the Island of Sakhalin whereover that is in exchange for some large calibre guns Now there may be a chance for Uncle Sam to unload the Philippines in the same way

The Times extends to its readers patrons and friends its heartiest wishes for a happy New Year May your resolutions today be of a high order and may you find both pleasure and profit in fulfilling them And when you have taken stock whether of your goods and material things or of your other possessions may the result spur you on to make this the bigger better year in every way for yourself for your community and for your nation

An Austin dispatch says State School Superintendent W F Doughty at the request of members of the legislature is preparing a bill providing for a compulsory school attendance law to fit the varying needs of all the schools of Texas. During the year 1914, there were 166,000 children in Texas within the scholastic age who failed to attend any school These figures are given by the records of the department of education for the State and those who were enrolled at some time during the 1913-14 term made an attendence record of little less than 65 per cent Perhaps if Texas had a compulsory educational law the cry of over production of cotton would not be so great Doubtless one-fourth of the cotton raised in Texas is planted, cultivated and picked by children who ought to be in the school room instead of in the cotton patch Such a law might mean a shorter cotton crop but it would also mean a better price for the cotton that is produced Such a law is just about as good a scheme as this paper can think of that would result in the reduction of the cotton acreage in this State

The Times wishes to call the attention of its readers to the articles furnished by the National Geographic Society which have appeared in this paper frequently since the war started This society is giving interesting information about nations, scenes and cities involved in the European struggle, and it is well worth reading, and enables those who are following the war to keep thoroughly posted as to what is transpiring The Times has sought in its small way, not only to keep its readers informed of every event in the war but to enable them to follow the story intelligently and studiously and in this it has been greatly helped by the society's articles The National Geographic Society furnishes this information without charge—its purpose being the worthy one of instilling in the public mind a desire for more extensive geographic knowledge

TAKING STOCK.

Belligerents are buying army supplies in this country at the rate of several million dollars a day but that is a temporary thing Meantime they are steadily burning up the resources that normally would be used to buy our goods next year and the year after There is a sort of trade on that it is every good American's first duty always to seize on any favorable fact to crow and beat a loud tom tom with it to the tune of Boom! Boom! Boom!

We do not think the country cares much for that tune just now however It strikes us as being in a notably sober frame of mind The high nervous tension of last August has very decidedly relaxed Business is improving and the outlook is brighter There is no touch of panic no particular fear We seem to feel quite sane and tight all round—and quite sober We have settled down to a steady long strong pull Business in the United States is seldom in equilibrium it is either rushing up or tumbling

It is doing neither now and there is probably a wide spread feeling that this is a good time for the United States to take stock of itself all round—cut out follies reduce wastes tighten up loose screws and set the machine in the best order we know how Probably a great many of us have that sort of feeling about national activities in general If a great many of us apply it to our own personal activities we shall get some important results

President Wilson is to deliver an address at Indianapolis on next Friday at which time it is thought he will take occasion to make reply to some of his critics Gov Colquitt should be there by all means

For the first time in forty years an American merchantman has landed at Bremen The ship was the Elmore and she sailed from Galveston on December with a cargo of 9000 bales of cotton arriving at Bremen on the first day of the New Year making her way through the mine fields to the amazement of the world, and to the admiration of all Americans The captain of the boat was an American and he did not seem to think it a very dangerous matter to avoid running into a mine

The Times is requested to state that every member of the Chamber of Commerce and those who expect to become members are invited to the smoker to be given by that organization at the Elks Club rooms tonight There is a good time in store for all who accept the invitation

There will be an effort made during the term of the next legislature to amend what is known as the suspended sentence law and it is said that among those who will urge that this law be amended will be one of the leading district judges of the State who have become disgusted with the working of the law in their respective courts As the law now stands almost any first offender of the law farring murder and few of the higher crimes on a plea about one chance in a hundred receiving a greater punishment than a fine or a suspended sentence. The jury trying a case in nearly all instances want to be just to the defendant if possible and therefore if the person being tried has never before been in court charged with an offense against the law it is rare that the jury will fail to recommend a suspended sentence and there is nothing for the court to do but follow the instructions of the jury It is thought by some of the district judges that this suspended sentence law is being largely overworked and that it should be amended leaving it at the discretion of the trial court as to whether sentence should or should not be suspended

HENRY FORD AHEAD OF HIS DAY

Henry Ford is ahead of his day We are living in a day of "greed and grab" Henry Ford is dividing up the profits of his auto manufacturing establishment with several thousand men and all are making good Even his floor sweepers are receiving five dollars a day If one establishment can make good in a competitive age like this why can not all establishments make good in the same way? When a man or a woman is allowed to share in the profits of their brain and brawn they get down to business If you are doubtful about this, ask Henry Ford But suppose a man or a woman is continually reminded that they are necessary evils about the shop what is the result? They begin to set schedules for themselves to get by on for they know if they pile up big dividends for the establishment the higher ups will only flaunt a bogus superiority in their faces and show them some fine results in elegant rolling stock and palaces If 60 or 5000 men and women work in an establishment and are ground down to the lowest possible wages it is not very encouraging to any of them to look out of the window and observe "the boss" in a five thousand dollar auto while they have to listen to tales of hard times on every pay day

Henry Ford is setting an example which is to live in history He is giving his employes a chance, and if all of these who expect to ride in Ford autos are not killed in the war now threatening to take in the whole world he will go down in history as the greatest man of the age His employes are able to eat better food live in better homes and do better work than any employes of a similar plant anywhere in the world Henry Ford is using the method of co-operation What he is doing in a small way within the very near future will be put into working force by nations What's the use of wasting time and labor? Why not co-operate as Ford is doing and give everybody a job at living wages? This is not socialism, it is common sense—Cleburne Review

PREPARE FOR WAR IS THE WAY TO CULTIVATE THE WAR SPIRIT

Over one half the world is at war today Perhaps if America had a standing army of a quarter or a half million fighting men and a navy three or four times as large as our present, we too might be at war with some other power There are two ways of looking at this matter however While there are a few who think we are missing a lot by not being better prepared for war the great majority believe that being unprepared is really the greatest blessing that we can hope to enjoy So far as we know there is no power that has the slightest idea of making war on us, or taking any of our present possessions and as we want nothing more than we already have what's the use of arming the people with something there is absolutely no use for—that is a larger navy and larger standing army Wichita Times

There are three classes of people who insist on a larger navy and army These who will profit by it by furnishing ships and guns and powder those who make a study and a pastime of soldiering and those who want to make a conquest of land or commerce that does not belong to them These three classes comprise a very small per cent of the population of this country and pay only a small per cent of the taxes They want war and perhaps they can afford war but the people who have to do the fighting and pay the taxes can't afford the preparations war demands When these preparations are made you can safely depend on it that the occasion for war will be found The best way in the world to avoid war is to let the war spirit die By preparing a great army and a great navy we but cultivate the war spirit Bonham News

Those who have figured it out claim or assert the United States can stop the European war in 60 days time by simply refusing to sell anything to the warring powers or to any power or persons that would turn it over to them Such a step might make business bad for a time but if it could be accomplished in even a year's time it would be well worth the trouble and financial loss that it would bring upon this country

The grain dealers are paying $1 25 per bushel for wagon wheat delivered at their elevators in Wichita Falls, and it is said that there are yet thousands of bushels in the granaries of wheat farmers in this section of the State There is little danger of the price going below what it now is for the next year and that probably accounts for the little grain that is being marketed The longer the wheat farmer can hold his wheat the better the price will receive for it

Texas has a population in excess of 4 000 000 people, and during the past year it has cost $1 75 per capita to maintain the state government That is not much but compared to the administration of Gov Campbell it is very big and it certainly cannot be claimed that Gov Colquitt's administration has in any way been an improvement over that of ex Gov Campbell

BELGRADE SCENE OF MUCH FIGHTING

CAPITAL OF SERVIA IS MORE THAN TWO THOUSAND YEARS OLD

"LITTLE PARIS OF THE BALKANS"

Generation After Generation of Fighters—Has Been Outpost Between Opposing Forces

Washington Jan —The National Geographic Society today issued the following bulletin telling of the geography and history of Belgrade the capital from whence Europe's present great war too its beginning and a city that has probably borne more shocks at arms than any other in Europe

Belgrade, the Little Paris of the Balkans, and perhaps the most bombarded city of the present war has probably seen more battles fought under its walls and experienced the surge, shock and eddies of war more often than any other city in Europe Its whole story is one of conflicts of races, religions and governments

Belgrade has more than 2 000 years of history and has had some seventy generations of seldom idle warriors An important key to the Balkan lands on the north, a point dominating the traffic between the upper and lower Danube, at one time an outpost of Roman power, at another time considered the key to Hungary for five luckless centuries situated on the border land between Moslems and Christians, and now a Slavonian outpost, Belgrade never since its foundation has been able to feel any certainty about the morrow's peace

Found Before Christ's Time

The Servian capital was founded in the third century before Christ up on a triangular rocky promotory at the confluence of the Save and Danube rivers It lies opposite the Slavonian town of Semlin in Hungary Upon one side the Danube here about 2 300 feet wide divides it from Hungary while the Save 1 250 feet wide bounds another foot of the triangle The ground of the city is an unsymetrical razorback sloping abruptly to the west and more gently the east At the apex of this triangle is a chalky cliff 20 feet high which overlooks and guards both rivers

The Celts built the first fortifications on this strategic rock They called it Singidunum The Romans were the next possessors and they added to the city's strength The Roman empire fell to pieces and Belgrade became a battlefield for many races converging from every quarter of the compass Huns Sarmatians Goths and Gepids were in turn its masters from the fourth to the sixth century The Emperor Justinian brought it again under Roman rule fortified and improved it It was captured by Charlemagne's Frankish adventurers, overrun by Bulgars reconquered for Byzantium wrested from the Greeks by the Hungarians and then battledored with rapid changing fortunes of war among Greeks Bulgars Hungarians and Germans

In the fourteenth century the city was in the hands of Servian kings first and later was held by the Hungarians Then came the Turks They waged a number of unsuccessful campaigns against the city but finally it fell into their hands in 1521 a prize for the Sultan Suleiman It practically remained in the power of these masters until 1867 bearing the brunt of every attack upon the Ottoman from the north and west

Between the sixteenth and nineteenth centuries the Servian capital was conquered a number of times and besieged often It however always found its way back to Turkey and although Servia practically became independent in the early part of the 19th century the Turkish garrison at Belgrade was not withdrawn until 1867

Thoroughly Modern City

Belgrade is the governmental and religious center the center of art and culture the financial commercial and foreign trade center of the Servian kingdom and it is the kernel of the Servian national consciousness Since the withdrawal of the Turkish garrison it has blossomed out into a modern city with wide streets electric lights street cars and parks and like gay places of recreation It has earned its designation of little Paris of the Balkans for there is a deal of finery

The capital's houses are long stretches of white with more of garden and tree plantings around them than is usually found in a western city The population has grown rapidly since 1867 from 26 000 in 1884 to 90,000 in 1910 and is a typical Balkan city mixture composed of Servians Bulgars Greeks Turks Jews Hungarians and Germans The city has a number of handsome public buildings many large well appearing business structures numerous hotels a university and a national library with 60 000 volumes

Belgrade in latter years has been one of the most patriotic capitals under the sun It has seethed and bubbled and boiled with pride and hope for its country The Serbs have undertaken every effort aiming toward making their capital known respected and even admired abroad

VEST'S SON TELLS A STORY

Humorous Reminiscence of the Famous Campaign of 1872 and its Convention.

Alec Vest son of the late Senator Vest of Missouri is a raconteur almost as noted in his home state as was his famous father

There used to be an old fellow John M Sneed who lived out in the country a short distance from Sedalia Mo, said Mr Vest at the Willard He was an old-fashioned bourbon Democrat of the extremest type He really gloried in his partisanship and was the sort of man who in drawing his will adjured his sons to continue voting the Democratic ticket Captain Sneed—he had never risen above the rank of a captain—was intensely interested in 1872 in the result of the Democratic national convention which I think was held in Baltimore and nominated Horace Greeley It was in that year that the Beecher Tilton trial was held and the newspapers everywhere were filled with accounts of the proceedings In those days news of the election returns or the outcome of political conventions was not as easily obtainable as today Old Captain Sneed however would not go to bed on the night the balloting began at the Democratic convention until he got some word from Baltimore He seated himself on his front porch and waited for those who had been in town to come along He stopped everybody and asked what they knew about the Democratic nominees for president None could tell him anything until long about midnight a party of roysterers came up the road singing and shouting The captain asked if they had any news from the convention

"Yes said one of the most jovial members of the party Beecher and Tilton were nominated

"The old man was aghast for a moment but he quickly recovered and said

"Well they are both good men, it will make a strong ticket —Washington Post

BOWS TO JUDGMENT OF DOG

Writer Recognizes That Individuals of a Species Ought Thoroughly to Know Their Kind.

In the American Magazine Will Irwin writes a wonderful true dog story entitled Togo Mayor of Scituate" Togo is a remarkable dog in Scituate Mass,—so well known and liked that he is called the mayor of Scituate Togo's power is shown in the following passage

We perceived at last that Togo had constituted himself committee on admissions to Peggotty beach When ever a new dog appeared Togo took the matter under advisement for a time, while he decided whether the stranger might remain If he ruled adversely he thrashed that dog and continued to thrash him until he learned that he was not elected I am not saying but that Togo administers this office capriciously He has refused beach rights to individuals which seem to me that a dog should be as well as to certain curious and treacherous examples of the species Still Togo may be right The judgment of a sapient dog on dogs of a woman or women—who am I that I should disagree?

Anticipating a Patriot.

An amusing story that illustrates the peremptory way in which affairs are conducted during a war crisis comes from England to the New York Telegram

A gentleman who lives in Southampton and who owns a speedy power boat wrote to the commander at Portsmouth offering his boat for the service of his country In reply he was considerably surprised to receive this letter

Your offer of power boat to his Majesty's government is received and has been noted It will not be necessary for you to make a formal transfer as the craft is already in use by his Majesty's naval forces

Difficulty has been experienced in getting some one who understands running her properly and you could render your country service by returning and operating her for his Majesty's navy

And the man was so much pleased at the way his craft had been commandeered that he volunteered and is now an assistant engineer ferrying naval officers about in the craft he used to own—and enjoying it

Story of Two Shoes

Billy Harking went to New York a day or so ago It was hot and he didn't sleep well, so along toward midnight he went out on the back platform for air And when he got there he found the porter using that back platform for a shoe shining parlor It was some time before daybreak says the Cleveland Plain Dealer

Just then a westbound train came along on the other track On the rear platform of that train was another shoe shining porter and it happened to be a friend of the porter on the eastbound Naturally Skinny's porter waved his hand unfortunately that hand had a shoe in it And the shoe slipped

"Billy Harking's porter turned pale (swears Billy Harking) But Billy was there with the soothing drop Don't get scared he said that was my shoe Throw the other one after it And the porter grinned and did it

But it wasn't Billy Harking's shoe He hadn't even put his shoes in the aisle to get polished He wonders what happened in the morning though He had gotten to sleep by that time.

Filling of Prescription In Drug Store Gives Fugitive Opportunity to Make Getaway

Special to The Times

Sheriff George Hawkins who returned last night from his trip to Pennsylvania after Frank Rembert sr who escaped from him at St Louis says that he doesn't mind the joshing he is receiving from his friends on the subject or more that he is out of pocket nearly so much as he does the loss of the prisoner He says that he never hated anything so badly in his life as he did coming home without his man

Mr Hawkins says it wasn't entirely for Rembert at all that resulted in his escape He says he didn't handcuff him because he wanted to escape attention himself Rembert being old and crippled would naturally have attracted much sympathy and attention so as they walked out for exercise he did not make Rembert wear the bracelets Rembert was ill and was taking medicine according to Mr Hawkins and they went to a drug store to get the prescription refilled While the clerk was making the prescription Mr Hawkins turned to buy a cigar When he looked around again Rembert was gone The drug store opened into a saloon and it was through this that he had made his escape

Had Filed Damage Suit.

When he got away he had three or four dollars in his clothing Mr Hawkins doubts whether he will be recaptured in St Louis but believes that he cannot escape capture long as he immediately sent out descriptions to police officers throughout that section of the country

A suit for damages filed by Rembert against a man at McKeesrock Mr Hawkins found was probably the cause of his arrest there The man who first notified the sheriff's department here that Rembert was at McKeesrock was the defendant in this suit He had heard Rembert talk about the killing of Hardwicke and when Rembert filed suit against him it is believed he saw that his return here might result in the dismissal of the suit so he notified the officers The latest escapade of Rembert is likely to bring this result

SAYS SOME REAL FIGHTING STILL PROMISED IN MEXICO

The Battle Royal

By Enos Emory

AT the age of 19 Ray Wheeler entered college and three years later he graduated as a lawyer He was taking a rest and looking around previous to setting up for himself when Aunt Hannah discovered something that made her shiver in horror She had heard no complaints of the young man's conduct while he was at college and no policeman had ever appeared at the house to warn her that Ray was whooping it up when away from her motherly influence

The young man had a caller one evening in the person of an old classmate They smoked and talked They talked about straight jabs uppercuts right-hand swings and other things belonging to the Greek language The door of the room was open and Aunt Hannah heard them Later they ascended to the garret She crept partway up the narrow stairs and saw and heard She saw them don boxing gloves and punch each other around the big room in fiercest fashion, and also make use of terms she never heard before not even in connection with state prisons and ward caucuses

When the visitor had departed Ray was summoned to the frozen presence of Aunt Hannah who began

I wish to ask you sir what an upper-cut is"

Why—why he stammered in his surprise an upper cut is when you bring your fist up in the teeth and land on the other fellow's chin

And what is a straight jab?

It is meeting the other fellow full in the face with your fist when he [illegible] at you

And don't I hear something about right hands and swings? she continued as she sat in judgment like a member of the supreme court

You swing with your right hand and sometimes knock the other fellow's head off

And what were you and that young man doing up in the garret?

We had the mitts on for a few rounds to keep in practice

Mitts? Mitts?

Boxing gloves you know

If I had known that they trained young men to be prize fighters you would never have gone to college Never mind that [illegible] other young man [illegible] again I [illegible] boxing [illegible]

It isn't

Not a word sir If anyone had told me that you were thief I could not feel worse The prize fighting business must stop right here If there is any more of it I shall alter my will in favor of those in life who are gentlemen even if they don't know any too much

The gloves were handed over to her and cut down stars to be cremated in the furnace and the visitor did not call again What I'll happen was that Ray Wheeler attended the nearest gymnasium instead It was an almost daily practice Aunt Hannah would have been none the wiser but for a tale bearer Her coachman wandered into the [illegible] one day and saw Ray hard at work and an hour later the spinster was in possession of the fact She [illegible] that she had [illegible] she passed by [illegible]

Didn't I tell you how horrified I got

What was? she demanded

Yes but

And that I wanted no prize fighter in my family?

Yes but you see——"

A gentleman always carries a cane to defend himself with

But a cane may be forgotten Suppose I was going down the street and was accosted by two or three—

I can't possibly suppose any such thing A loafer recognizes a gentleman when he sees one and lets him alone Ray you may go to a hotel for two or three days I want time to think things over When I have come to a decision I will send you word

Ray Wheeler went without making further protest He had been at the hotel for two days when he took a walk through a certain part of the city and besotted men and women thronged and keeping as clear of passing carts as he could when he came upon a broken down carriage in the street

He recognized the driver as the man who grovelled for the Aunt Burt and a moment later saw the woman herself standing in a doorway She was on one of her charity rounds Half a dozen loafers had taken advantage of an accident to hem her in and rendered her helpless She had given up her purse but they wanted more They were referring to her as an old gal and almost tearing the gloves off her hands when there came an interruption The adopted son put up his dukes and began knocking the loafers into the gutter He cleared a path to Aunt Hannah and bid her be of good cheer and then a pretty little play occurred Three or four of the gang came back for more and got it Then backs when a policeman [illegible] pushed his way through the crowd and exclaimed

Bully for you young man [illegible] willing to give up a hundred bucks I could handle my dukes like that

Aunt Hannah was escorted to a repaired carriage and she motioned to Ray to get in beside her She didn't a word to say until she reached home and had her bonnet off Then she turned and asked

Ray did you upper cut them?

Yes aunt

And give them straight jabs?"

"For sure"

And deliver right-hand swings?"

A few of them

I—I guess you'd better stay home now that you are here and if you want the use of the garret I shan't have any objections providing you were three of them asleep on their don't make too much noise!"

With Cousin Phil's Help

By Will Seaton

HUNTER JOHNSTON was in love with Carrol thoroughly so, but the practical joking instinct is like conscience and a taste for olives—hard to forget when once acquired A brilliant idea in the jesting line came to Johnston the morning of his sweetheart's birthday and he immediately set about giving it to that portion of the world in which he was most interested

Carrol's birthday gifts from her particular circle were all that heart could desire and she waited with happy anticipation for her fiancee's offering

At 1 o'clock a messenger boy appeared with a long, slender package for Miss Merrifield She opened it with eagerness and found a single magnificent American beauty wrapped carefully in waxed paper and sparkling as if with the dew of June Within five minutes another messenger with another long slender package rang the bell and this also yielded up a rose When with the regularity of clockwork five uniformed imps had come and gone in twenty five minutes all with similar votive offerings the girl comprehended Johnston of the fertile mind had hit upon the plan of sending her twenty three roses one for each year of her life but the gift was to be delivered on the installment plan

The ingenious idea was pleasing for a time With the tenth rose the Merrifield family was holding joyous council over the ever increasing pile of boxes in the library, and Carrol was restless When the fifteenth bona fide messenger had come and gone—not counting four small curiosity-seekers who smiled expansively murmured something about the wrong number and retreated Carrol was thoroughly angry When on the heels of the twenty third accredited flower bearer Johnston appeared a particularly desirable brooch in his possession and a sense of duty well done in his heart she was composed but the anger though not visible was present and [illegible]

With true [illegible] Johnston noted nothing out of the ordinary with his sweetheart She thanked him gaily and with the proper degree of warmth for brooch and roses

Mr Practical Joker must have a lesson Miss Merrifield declared to herself, after his departure as she nibbled with lips as red as the petals themselves at the eighteenth rose I didn't mind so much his other tricks but this time he has gone too far

He'd only laugh if he knew old Mrs Froude sat in her window and counted those messengers With the extra ones mixed in little wretches—there were thirty one of them

She knows today is my birthday and saw through Hunter's scheme as quickly as I did And she'll never believe but what I'm thirty one! So Mr Hunter Johnston beware of an old maid's vengeance and she waved the rose theatrically in air

On the morning of his own birthday five days later when his man brought up the mail Johnston's eye was immediately taken by one long white envelope It was certainly peculiar in appearance, for his name and address were formed of letters clipped from newspapers and pasted upon it The envelope contained the following missive similarly constructed

Do you care to see your sweetheart chatting with another man? Be at the Twenty third street ferry Thursday afternoon at 4

At ten minutes of the hour Johnston's heart gave a painful throb for Carrol rosy from the searching wind entered the ferry building A tall athletic young man with the air of the outlander about him he was well dressed and evidently well bred but not a New Yorker followed her in He was carrying two heavy suitcases

Johnston confronted them May I ask what this means Carrol? he asked quietly

The girl halted and seemed to shrink from him The athletic stranger stepped forward And may I inquire how it concerns you? He did not raise his voice and the attention of none of the jostling scores was attracted to the group

Johnston ignored him Did I deserve this Carrol? he went on If you'd ask I'd release you When I got this letter —

The girl had determined to punish him thoroughly but at the sight of his wearied troubled face she relented

Do you know she interrupted blithely I'm proud of that letter? I avoided telling a lie in it even a white one although I came pretty close to fibbing didn't I? But I blistered my hand cutting out those letters Wasn't it a real sweet little birthday gift?

Doubt and dawning comprehension struggled in Johnston's eyes But, why—why he began

Why—why? mocked his sweetheart her head tilted saucily a roguish smile on her face Just to show that two can play at practical joking as well as one Thirty-one messenger boys sir! You should have a whole month of anonymous letters

But this gentleman he waved his hand toward the athletic stranger who appeared to be enjoying the conversation overmuch

My cousin Phil Hudson of Omaha Mr Johnson He came last night but could only stay with us a few hours

You were the victim of a base conspiracy Mr Johnston laughed Hudson as they shook hands I beg pardon

Oh nothing of consequence, responded Johnston, "I just said stung!"

NEW COURT BILL HAS BEEN DRAFTED

MEETING OF BAR ASSOCIATION CALLED MONDAY TO CONSIDER IT

SOME OPPOSITION DEVELOPES

Clay County Representatives Inclined to Oppose Creation of New Court

Plans for the creation o the new judicial district to consist out of Wichita county are going forward rapidly and the bill to be presented to the legislature has been prepared by the special committee of the Bar association to which this matter was entrusted A call for a meeting of the association for tomorrow morning has been issued as follows

To the members of the Wichita Falls Bar Association A meeting of the Bar Association will be held at the court house Monday January 4 at [illegible] Public [illegible]

Opposition In Sight

That there will be some opposition to the new court is clearly apparent C W Burkett representative elect from this district, is on record that he will be against the creation of a court if Wichita Falls would vote out

The arguments made by the opponents of the court are simple profit [illegible] are about [illegible] the 30th district there are [illegible] days in the court [illegible] that about five cases per day have to be disposed of [illegible] docket Even with diversion [illegible] civil docket and [illegible] criminal docket [illegible] average that man [illegible] not considered [illegible] the dockets [illegible] condition

Mr Boner's Attitude

In connection with the opposition to the new court [illegible] Henrietta Independent [illegible] says

Representative [illegible] Wichita county district [illegible] Mr Boner said he was [illegible] oppose He said that if [illegible] presented to him that [illegible] that county is in [illegible] ted condition this condition has been brought about with no [illegible] thought so to speak That is that the lawyers of Wichita county who want the new court have deliberately continued their case with the express intention of filling up the docket with a great number of cases so as to make a showing before the legislature that the court is needed He thinks that Judge Akin has agreed to analyze the docket and has said that if it is possible for him to do so he will recommend that the court is not established

While he did not say so in so many words it was of the opinion that if Wichita county will vote out the saloons Mr Boner will vote for the new court bill A committee of lawyers will therefore the legislature and urge the establishment of the new district court in Wichita county in addition to the terms of court held there by the court of the 30th judicial district which district it is proposed to have [illegible] is at present served

The bill which will be introduced contemplates making the new court one for civil cases exclusively with the same annual terms starting in March and September The judge of the new court would however have authority to call grand juries or reconvene trial juries of the district court that were dismissed except in order to do so The original draft of the bill as required by the committee follows

SAY SOLUTION NOT IN DIVERSIFICATION

FARMERS UNION OFFICIALS DISCUSS MOVEMENT IN THIS STATE

CREDIT SYSTEM CHIEF DANGER

Texas Needs to be Freed of its Evils First, They Say, Before Adopting New Ideas

Special to The Times

Fort Worth Texas Jan 4 The following signed article has been given out from the headquarters of the Farmers Educational and Co Operative Union of Texas in this city

Much is being said on the subject of diversification in Texas and the Farmers Union has preached it season and out and the organizations we have the honor to represent stand ready to cooperate with every movement looking to the practical solution of the problems of agriculture Every farmer should live at home and every influence that encourages him to do so is a blessing

While diversification is an important factor it is not the whole thing and it is one the farmer can not solve unaided The principal difficulty lies in the high rates of interest and low price for our products and the solution of these problems require cooperation between the farmers bankers and business men To give a concrete example we will take Smith county where one of the undersigned recently addressed an audience of farmers and business men and came in contact with actual conditions as they now exist there This county cannot excel in the intelligence and patriotism of its citizenship it probably leads of other counties in diversified farming peaches, tomatoes and grapes and other vegetables were at one time famous and it is one of the foremost counties in the farming country and it is there that the credit system bounds and bears its most perfect fruit Conditions there are in the main typical in many ways of agricultural conditions throughout the State as a whole

Where Blame Rests

We want to show where the blame rests for the credit merchant system as well as a victim of the credit system, and the farmers as not altogether blameless for this heavy galling yoke of usury which custom has placed upon his back The farmers in that county as well as those of many other counties have been caught between the voracious jaws of usury and low prices, and crushed and they now lie writhing in agony

The good women of Tyler are relieving the distress by assembling cast off clothing of the family and offering it to wives of the poor farmers some of whom it is said are glad to accept it The high rate of interest has taken clothes off the backs of the families of many farmers and their wives and children are suffering with cold Some of the farmers mortgaging their crop were not fully informed as far ahead as 1916 in order to obtain credit Such farmers are no longer free men they are [illegible] peons with mortgaged souls

Does Smith county need Fathers of book farmers to teach them how to farm? We think not but we do need patriotic business men and level headed farmers who will deal with us square and cooperate in getting cheap money and in building warehouses and financing the crop The farmers know as much about raising pumpkins potatoes and peanuts as they do about raising cotton and they will raise them whenever there is a profitable market

Too Much Theory Feared

The over zealous and [illegible] city diversifiers who urge the farmer to imbibe freely and blindly of their advice are oftimes a worse enemy to the farmer than the usurer and there are many farmers in Texas today stranded by participating in theoretical folly

We understand that a movement is on for city diversifiers to put on a whirlwind campaign using the press and a train load of agricultural orators to impress upon the farmer the importance of diversification The Farmers Union stands for diversification along practical lines but opposes diversifying from a marketable product to one that cannot be marketed and the farmers of Texas can never hope to become either wealthy or intelligent through conversations with business men

It is a favorite pastime of city farm editors of whom have profited by the high rate of interest prevailing to contribute toward the expense of sending out a train load of book farmers who pin agricultural yarns and practice get rich quick schemes on farming that have never failed to break every farmer who tried them

We understand that it is proposed to start the train out early in the morning dropping off speakers along the route and returning late at night to pick them up We are especially interested in having them picked up as we fear many of these agricultural experts of left to make a living on the farm would starve to death inside of ninety days

Some Questions Asked

We want to ask some of the titled attaches to this proposed train a few questions Will the peanut professor please say what the farmers are to do with the surplus goober crop now on hand and which cannot be sold at cost of production? These products were raised in many instances at the urgent insistence of city diversifiers who talked as though factories would spring up in every fence corner bidding for peanuts

During the past year we think it safe to estimate that one third of the vegetables rotted for want of a market Shall we raise more? Why is it that these men who know so much about farming dont try plowing awhile and quit talking about it?

FORMER MINISTER SUING FOR DIVORCE

BOTH HE AND HIS WIFE MAKE CHARGES AGAINST THE OTHER

"CONFESSIONS" IN TESTIMONY

Woman Tells of Admissions To Her By Husband—Case Is Not Yet Finished

Now I hope you've got sense enough to keep that man away from here Mrs Reta Jennings testified she told her husband C O Jennings whose suit for divorce she is contesting before Judge Akin in the district court after friends had confessed to Jennings that he had adulters in his heart Mrs Jennings testified that she did not know of her own knowledge that such a confession had been made but that her husband had told her it had This was while Jennings was a minister of the gospel in Oklahoma He has since withdrawn from the ministry The man whom Jenning had told her had made such a confession she said was a missionary who had returned from Mexico

Mrs Jennings testified about this man with some bitterness She said he had come to their home and would remain at times at a time She said she remonstrated with her husband repeatedly about allowing this man to consume their substance and when this failed to have any effect she invited the man herself to leave their home This, however, she said he failed to do and the matter brought on a quarrel between herself and her husband

In his petition Jennings charged his wife with improper relations with other men and other serious matters Depositions and testimony have been introduced in an effort to substantiate these charges Yesterday afternoon Mrs Jennings took the stand and gave her version of their marital troubles In her testimony she made charges of a most startling character declaring that on more than one occasion her husband had confessed to her a certain excesses and that his conduct physicians had told her was responsible for her illness She was still on the stand and her cross examination had not been completed when court recessed at 6 o'clock last night Judge Akin is hearing the testimony whenever he can catch a few spare minutes from the murder case that is now being tried

RURAL CARRIERS ASK FOR COOPERATION OF PUBLIC

Issue Statement Showing How Those Whom They Serve May Help Them

Following is a letter to rural delivery patrons from the rural mail carriers association of this city

Dear Patron Rural delivery of mail is making great strides each year toward making life in rural districts more desirable The rural carriers of this county desire the cooperation of their patrons to make the year 1915 the banner year for rural delivery since the inception of the service

In this city we make the following suggestion Mail on a good road conveniently located for the carrier may be placed in a good box solidly in the street Very slight loss of time in a day's delivery will be made if the box is so placed that the carrier can drive up to the box so as not to delay the delivery of mail to other patrons One minute's loss of time at each box on a route with 150 boxes causes the carrier to serve his last box two and a half hours late Do not leave postage stamped letters or cards in your box An order of the postoffice department reads

Postmasters at rural delivery offices and rural carriers are directed to bring to the attention of patrons that it is the desire of the department that all first-class mail matter deposited in rural mail boxes shall be stamped before being deposited

Your carrier is always supplied with stamps stamped envelopes stamp books postal cards and blank applications for money orders You may purchase your money orders through your carrier, or cash them You may also register any letter or valuable package with him The post office department is making a special effort to enable the farmer to market his produce at a small cost A package weighing fifty pounds may be sent to any address at your local office for thirty cents and to any office within the radius of 150 miles for fifty four cents Perishable goods are given special attention no use to lose time going to market with a few pounds of butter, a few dozen eggs and a few bunches of turnips

Insist on your correspondents addressing your mail to your route and box numbers When possible, the stamped envelope with your return address should be used in your correspondence If the roads traveled by your carrier in your vicinity are in bad condition kindly take up the subject with your neighbors and the proper officials that the necessary repairs may be more promptly made

Concentrated action from intelligent, progressive people always commands attention from public officials (Signed)

How They Fought At Sea In 1779; America's First Great Naval Victory

An account of a sea fight in 1779 which in the light of present events is quite interesting has been furnished The Times being an excerpt from the volume "Great Epochs in American History

Jones wrote this account as his official report to Congress sending it through Benjamin Franklin who then represented the Colonies in France He wrote it on board the captured British ship Serapis while she lay at anchor off Holland in October 1779 The fight between the Bonhomme Richard and the Serapis had occurred in the North Sea late in September of this year the Serapis being vastly the superior of Paul Jones's own ship Jones gave the name Bonhomme Richard to his own ship—an old India man—out of compliment to Franklin The expense of his expedition had been borne by the King of France After achieving his famous victory Jones was received in France with much enthusiasm The Bonhomme Richard sank the next morning after the battle

On the morning of that day the 23rd the brig from Holland not being in sight, we chased a brigantine that appeared lying to windward About noon we saw and chased a large ship that appeared coming round Flamborough Head from the northward and at the same time I manned and armed one of the pilot boats to sail in pursuit of the brigantine which now appeared to be the vessel that I had forced ashore Soon after this a fleet of 41 sail appeared off Flamborough Head bearing N N E This induced me to bandon the single ship, which had then anchored in Burlington Bay I also called back the pilot boat and hoisted a signal for a general chase When the fleet discovered us bearing down, all the merchant ships crowded sail towards the shore The two ships of war that protected the fleet at the same time steered from the land, and made the disposition for the battle In approaching the enemy I crowded every possible sail and made the signal for the line of battle to which the Alliance showed no attention Earnest as I was for the action I could not reach the commodore's ship until seven in the evening Being then within pistol shot when he hailed the Bon homme Richard we answered him by firing a whole broadside

The battle being thus begun was continued with incredible fury Every method was practised on both side to gain an advantage and raking each other and I must confess that the enemy's ship being much more manageable than the Bon homme Richard gained thereby several times an advantageous situation in spite of my best endeavors to prevent it As I had to deal with an enemy of greatly superior force I was under the necessity of closing with him to prevent the advantage which he had over me in point of maneuvre It was my intention to lay the Bon homme Richard athwart the enemy's bow but as that operation required great dexterity in the management of both sails and helm and some of our braces being shot away it did not exactly succeed to my wishes The enemy's bowsprit however came over the Bon homme Richard's poop by the mizzen mast and I made both ships fast together in that situation which by the action of the wind on the enemy's sails forced her stern close to the Bon homme Richard's bow so that the ships lay square alongside of each other the yards being all entangled and the cannon of each ship to bear the opponent's side When this position took place it was 8 o'clock, previous to which the Bon homme Richard had received sundry eighteen pounds shot below the water and leaked very much My battery of 12 pounders on which I had placed my chief dependence, being commanded by Lieut Dale and Col Weibert and manned principally with American seamen and French volunteers were entirely silenced and abandoned As to the six old eighteen ponders that formed the battery of the lower gun deck, they did no service whatever Two out of three of them burst at the first fire and killed almost all the men who were stationed to manage them Before this time too Col de Chamillard who commanded a party of 20 soldiers on the poop had abandoned that station after having lost some of his men These men deserted their quarters I had now only two pieces of cannon nine pounders on the quarter deck that were not silenced and not one of the heavier cannon was fired during the rest of the action The purser Mr Mease who commanded the guns on the quarter deck being dangerously wounded in the head I was obliged to fill his place and with great difficulty rallied a few men and shifted over one of the lee quarter deck guns so that we afterward played three pieces of 9 pounders upon the enemy The tops done seconded the fire of this little battery and held out bravely during the whole of the action especially the main top where Lieut Stack commanded I directed the fire of one of the three cannon against the main mast with double headed shot while the other two were exceedingly well served with grape and canister shot to silence the enemy's musketry and clear her decks which was at last effected the enemy were as I have since understood on the instant of calling for quarter when the cowardice or the treachery of three of my under officers induced them to call to the enemy The English commodore asked me if I demanded quarter and I having answered him in the most determined negative they renewed the battle with double fire They were unable to gain the deck but the fire of their cannon especially the lower battery which was entirely formed of 18 pounders was incessant Both ships were set on fire in various places and the scene was dreadful beyond the reach of language To account for the timidity of my three under officers—I mean the gunner the carpenter, and the master at arms—I must observe that the two first were slightly wounded and as the ship had received various shots under water and one of the pumps being shot away, the carpenter expressed his fear that she would sink and the other two concluded that she was sinking, which occasioned the gunner to run aft on the poop without my knowledge to strike the colors Fortunately for me, a cannon ball had done that before by carrying away the ensign staff He was therefore reduced to the necessity of sinking as he supposed, or of calling for quarter and he preferred the latter

All this time the Bon homme Richard had sustained the action alone and the enemy, though much superior in force would have been very glad to have got clear, as appears by their own acknowledgements and by their having let go an anchor the instant that I laid them on board, by which means they would have escaped had I not made them well fast to the Bon homme Richard

At last at half past 9 o'clock, the Alliance appeared, and I now thought the battle at an end, but, to my utter astonishment, he discharged a broadside full into the stern of the Bon homme Richard We called to him for God's sake to forbear firing into the Bon homme Richard, yet he passed along the off side of the ship and continued firing There was no possibility of his mistaking the enemy's ship for the Bon homme Richard, there being the most essential difference in their appearance and construction, besides, it was then full moonlight, and the sides of the Bon homme Richard were all black while the sides of the prizes were yellow, yet, for the greater security I showed the signal of our reconnoissance by putting out three lanterns, one at the head (bow), another at the stern (quarter), and the third in the middle in a horizontal line Every tongue cried that he was firing into the wrong ship, but nothing availed He passed round, firing into the Bon homme Richard's head stern and broadside, and by one of his volleys killed several of my best men and mortally wounded a good officer on the forecastle My situation was really deplorable The Bon homme Richard received various shot under water from the Allian the leak gained on the pumps and the fire increased much on board both ships Some officers persuaded me to strike, of whose courage and good sense I entertained a high opinion If treacherous master at arms let loose all my prisoners without my knowledge and my prospect became gloomy indeed I would not however give up the point The enemy's main mast began to shake, their firing decreased, ours rather increased and the British colors were struck at half an hour past 10 o'clock

The prize proved to be the British ship of war the Serapis, a new ship of 44 guns built on their most approved construction, with two complete batteries one of them of 18 pounders and commanded by the brave Commodore Richard Pearson I had yet two enemies to encounter far more formidable than the Britons—I mean fire and water The Serapis was attacked only by the first, but the Bon homme Richard was assailed by both There were five feet of water in the hold, and, though it was moderate from the explosion of so much gunpowder, yet the three pumps that remained could with difficulty only keep the water from gaining The fire broke out in various parts of the ship in spite of all the water that could be thrown to quench it and at length broke out as low as the powder magazine and within a few inches of the powder In that dilemma I took out the powder upon deck ready to be thrown overboard at the last extremity, and it was ten o'clock the next day the 24th, before the fire was entirely extinguished With respect to the situation of the Bon homme Richard, the rudder was cut entirely off the stern frame, and the transoms were almost entirely cut away, the timbers, by the lower deck especially from the mainmast to the stern being greatly decayed with age were mangled beyond my power of description, and a person must have been an eye witness to form a just idea of the tremendous scene of carnage wreck and ruin that everywhere appeared Humanity cannot but recoil from the prospect of such finished horror and lament that war should produce such fatal consequences

After the carpenters as well as Capt de Cottines and other men of sense had well examined and surveyed the ship (which was not finished before five in the evening) I found every person to be convinced that it was impossible to keep the Bon homme Richard afloat so as to reach a port if the wind should increase, it being then only a very moderate breeze I had but little time to remove my wounded, which now became unavoidable, and which was effected in the course of the night and next morning I was determined to keep the Bon homme Richard afloat and if possible to bring her into port For that purpose the first lieutenant of the Pallas continued on board with a party of men to attend the pumps with boats in waiting ready to take them on board in case the water should gain on them too fast The wind augmented in the night and the next day on the 25th, so that it was impossible to prevent the good old ship from sinking They did not abandon her till after 6 o'clock The water was then up to the lower deck and a little after ten I saw with inexpressible grief the last glimpse of the Bon homme Richard No lives were lost with the ship but it was impossible to save the stores of any sort whatever I lost even the best part of my clothes, books and papers, and several of my officers lost all their clothes and effects

THE FIRST COFFEE ADVERTISEMENT

The Public Advertiser, a London Weekly dated May 26th, 1657, contains the first advertisement of coffee to appear in any newspaper, as far as known. This ad is a genuine literary curio.

"In Bartholomew Lane, on the back side of the old Exchange, the drink called coffee, which is a very wholesome and physical drink, having many virtues, closes the orifice of the stomach, fortifies the heat within, helpeth digestion, quickeneth the spirits, maketh the heart lightsome, is good against eye sores, coughs, rhumes, consumption, headache, dropsie, gout, scurvy, Kings evil, and many others, is to be sold in the morning and at three of the clock in the afternoons."

We don't make as extravagant claim for coffee as this today but do claim that good coffee fresh roasted, properly prepared and drank while fresh is the best beverage known to man.

PROGRESS AT MANY POINTS IS CLAIMED

FRENCH REPORT TELLS OF MINOR GAINS ALL ALONG LINE

GERMANS USE MINE THROWERS

Employ Them Effectively at Several Points—Further Gains In Alsace Reported

By Associated Press

Paris, Jan 8—The French war office gave out an official statement this afternoon as follows

"The artillery of the enemy showed, during all the day of January 7 great activity in Belgium and in the vicinity of Arras The French artillery responded spiritedly and efficaciously Our infantry made some progress at Lombaertzyde We occupied at a point 50 yards in advance of our trenches a hillock which had been held by the enemy To the east of St. Georges we gained ground and we inflicted serious damage on the trenches of the enemy in the vicinity of Steenstraate

"In the sector of Arras at the forest of Berthonval, without being attacked, we were compelled to evacuate certain trenches where our men were up to their shoulders in sand and water. To the west of Boiselle our line of trenches has been moved forward and we occupied the road from Boiselle to Avelny In the valley of the Aisne the artillery exchanges yesterday were quite spirited Our heavy artillery secured good results near Blanc Sablon At this point the mine throwers of the enemy inflicted losses on us but in the afternoon we checked this from the Germans

"In the sector of Rheims to the west of the forest Des Zouaves we blew up a block house and occupied a new trench 200 yards in advance of our lines. The artillery engagements between Betheny and Prunay were conducted yesterday with great fierceness The Germans left many dead on the field Our losses were not heavy Between Jonchery sur Suitt and Souain we time and again reduced to silence the artillery of the enemy, demoralized his trenches and destroyed his breastworks

"In the Argonne to the west of Haute Chevauche the enemy by means of a mine blew up some of our first line trenches which were completely demolished A violent attack undertaken by the enemy on our positions was repulsed with the bayonet We took some prisoners and maintained our front except for a distance of 80 yards Here the demolishment of the trenches obliged us to establish our line 20 yards further back On the heights of the Meuse and between the Meuse and the Moselle there is nothing to report Here the wind blew a tempest all day long on January 7

"Our offensive continued yesterday in the region of Thann and near Altkirch and brought important results We reoccupied the trenches on the eastern flank of Hill 42 a position where the enemy two days ago succeeded in establishing himself We then gained some ground to the east of those trenches

Further to the south we reoccupied Barnhauptle-Haut and at the same time we made progress in the direction of Pont D Aspach and Ahalberg The artillery of the enemy which had endeavored without success to reach our batteries gave up shooting at our artillery in favor of the exclusive bombardment of the hospital at Thann which has been evacuated

SIEGE WARFARE PREVAILS UPON BOTH BATTLE LINES

Germans Appear Unable To Progress Any Further Toward Warsaw

ARMY OF 1,000,000 FOR SUPREME EFFORT

Russian Invasion Of Bukowina Continues And Carpathian Advance Threatens To Be Momentous

By Associated Press.

London, Jan. 8.—Aside from the continued Russian pursuit of the Turkish forces defeated in the Caucasus and the continuation of the Russian advance through the passes of the Carpathian mounatins siege warfare with intermittent artillery duels seem for the moment to prevail almost everywhere in the area of hostilities, in the eastern arena as well as in the western. The reports reaching London show that General Von Hindenburg, the German commander in Poland for some time past has made no appreciable progress toward Warsaw, the mud of Poland having evidently done for him what the broken dykes and the resultant inundations did for the Germans in western Flanders.

A dispatch coming to London from Copenhagen declares Von Hindenburg is expecting heavy reinforcements and that with an army of 1,000,000 men he proposes to make one more supreme effort to break through to the Polish capital. The Russians would appear to have had ample time to reinforce themselves and to strengthen their positions around Warsaw and it is the opinion of British observers that the trench warfare for which the western theatre of the war has become famous will be waged in the region of the Polish rivers.

Austria-Hungary again admits the retirement of her forces in Bukowina and it is from this Russian forward movement, before which the Austrians are giving way that the most spectacular developments of the next fortnight may be expected to spring according to the opinion held today by some British observers of the war. The argument is made that once Russia gets a foothold beyond the mountain passes, something that may be accomplished in a fortnight if the Russians are not checked, a big stride toward the over-running of Hungary would have been made. If this is accomplished it will be the first considerable invasion of any territory of the Teutonic allies.

IMMIGRATION MEASURE IS NOW IN CONFERENCE

House Has Vigorous Discussion of Amendments Made To Bill By Senate

Washington Jan 8 The immigration bill prescribing a test of literacy for aliens coming into this country was sent to a conference committee of the House and Senate by the House after a vigorous debate over the amendments written into the measure by the Senate

Before sending the bill to conference the House registered its disagreement to the Senate amendments excluding members of the African or black race and exempting from the literacy test and the contract immigration provisions of the law Belgian agricultural immigrants coming to this country because of conditions caused by the European war Both of these amendments caused protracted discussion which kept the House busy throughout the day's session The negro exclusion amendment was defeated 22 to and the Belgian exemption without a division Representative Cullop (Indiana) sought unsuccessfully to broaden the exception in order to admit not only farmers but industrial workers from Belgium and Representative Gallagher (Illinois) proposed to extend the exemption to farmers from Poland

The House conferees in opposing amendment that to exclude all persons of constitutional psychopathic inferiority and persons suffering with chronic alcoholism

Much of the debate was against the literacy test provision despite the fact that this already had been agreed to by both Houses Representative Gallivan (Massachusetts) made an effort to obtain another vote on the proposition but was ruled out of order

TEXAS GOVERNMENT COSTS DOLLAR AND SIX BITS EACH

Per Capita Expense Is $1.75 According To Calculation Made at Austin

Special to The Times.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 8.—It costs a dollar and six-bits, on an average for every man, woman and child in Texas to run this State government. This is the calculation made by A. L. Love, state tax commissioner. As compared with other states, this per capita figure is quite low. Accurate data on the difference between the efficiency of other State governments and that of Texas, however, is not given. Mr. Love's figures and analysis thereof are as follows.

"Without going into detail as to the various items, the total disbursement from the general revenue of the State for the fiscal years ending Aug. 31, 1913 and Aug 31, 1914, was approximately $6,000,000 and $7,000,000, respectively, with amounts included the deficiency appropriation for the penitentiary system and all other deficiencies.

"The cost of our State government is very low in comparison with that of other States. The North Dakota tax commission, in its report for 1913 has compiled a list of representative State governments exclusive of the aid given to public schools. This list is as follows:

"North Dakota, $3.89; South Dakota, $2.40; Arizona, $7.08; California $5.66; Montana, $5.40; Nevada, $8.92; New York, $7.44; Washington, 4.03; Wisconsin, $4.43.

"The population of Texas at this time is in excess of 4,000,000 and even if the disbursements for the last year included no deficiencies, the per capita most of our State government for said time would not exceed $1.75 which is very little more than 50 per cent of the expenditures of the State in the above list having the lowest per capita cost. In a number of States the cost of the State government, exclusive of the aid given the public schools, exceeds $7 per capita."

METZ STRONGHOLD IN MANY CAMPAIGNS

FORTRESS IN LORRAINE HAS OFTEN BEEN SCENE OF CONFLICT

DATES BACK TO DAYS OF ROME

Never Taken By Besiegers Until Germans Successfully Attacked It in 1870

Washington, Jan. 8.—The National Geographic Society has just prepared the following statement concerning Metz, the objective of the French invasion of Lorraine:

"The fortress of Metz from Roman days has never been carried by storm. Throughout history down to 1870 it successfully defied all besiegers, and the French in 1870 surrendered to famine and disease rather than to a pressing enemy. This almost impregnable fortress has changed hands now and again, and these changes have been effected by treaty and treachery and famine, but never by force of arms. The Romans knew Metz, Divordurum, as 'the stronghold of the gods.'

"Metz is the capital of German Lorraine, and it is considered to possess one of the most powerful fortifications in Europe. It is the pivot point in the broken frontier dividing the Franks, Celts and Gauls of the west and south from the Germans of the east and north. The centuries-long contest between Latin and German has surged back and forth over this city, broken in eddies around it, and the contestants have continually regrouped with Metz as the central point in the plans of their opposing strategies; for Metz is the most important key in the barrier between Latin and Germanic civilizations. Metz and Strasburg are the two western gates to Germany.

How Romans Used Town

"The Romans used Metz as their northern base against the German barbarians, and they connected it by military roads with Toul, Verdun, and other camps in Roman hinterland. From Metz, the Roman legions made their incursions into the impenetrable Black Forest, in the east, and into the forest and swamp lands of the north and west. By the treaty of Mersen, in 870—Metz came into the possession of East Franconia, now Germany. It rapidly gained importance as an industrial and outpost city, and in the 13th century, was made a free imperial city. The Reformation, another element of the Latin-German struggle, raged around Metz as a center. During these times of religious unrest, Metz fell into the power of France, and the French were confirmed in their possession by the Peace of Westphalia (1648). It remained under the French rule until the German conquest of 1870.

"The country all about Metz is strategic, and, consequently, forbidden ground. Tourists, with pronounced camera tendencies, have never been encouraged around the fortress. The city lies in a fertile, pleasant valley, which widens out among the hills to the north and which narrows toward the mountainous French frontier. It is upon the heights, the craggy hills, the passes, the gorge-broken, fir-covered, razor-back spur hills that the powerful detached forts which guard the city of Metz and its valley running between France and Germany are planted. These works have been constructed around the city by the score, and they stretch in a wide, concealed fan, more than six miles before the outskirts of Metz.

Atmosphere is Military

"The city itself is situated on the confidence of the Seille and Moselle, about eleven miles east of the French frontier. It is built between the two rivers and upon the islands of the Moselle. Much of the city is composed of narrow, irregular streets, lined with ancient, picturesque buildings. There are some new and imposing structures in the town, however, and some straight streets. Even in times of peace, Metz makes plain that its calling is war. Through it has about 75,000 civil population, the peace garrison of 25,000 men monopolize the attention on every thoroughfare and promenade. Around the city, and within it are the huge barracks of the soldiery.

"The country around Metz, a rise and fall of evergreen woodlands, is beautiful. The heights and hills are not only heavily forested, but are also unusually broken and irregular, composing a ground about as unfavorable as possible for attacking military operations. The forts of Metz were begun on a large scale by the French, and they have been strengthened through all their years of possession by the Germans."

MEXICAN OIL SITUATION IS DECLARED VERY SERIOUS

Special to The Times.

Galveston, Texas, Jan. 8.—The oil situation in Mexico is disrupted and demoralized by the continual strife in that republic according to Charles E. Alexander of that country, who is now in this city. As a result oil shipments from Mexico ports are being rushed with all possible expedition before the situation becomes still more acute.

"The oil companies have weathered revolution after revolution," he said. "Now they are in the midst of one that is outclassing the others, that has greatly unsettled labor conditions, that has made life cheap in Mexico."

In connection with this report, it has been learned authoritatively that virtually all of the larger companies that operate in the fields and who ship crude oil to Gulf Coast ports have ordered their steamships to get just as much oil as possible out of Mexico before a crisis comes that they are certain is one the way.

In obedience to this order, six steamers have hurried crude oil shipments to Gulf ports within the last week and are planning to hurry back to get out more oil.

SAVES DAUGHTER

Advice of Mother no Doubt Prevents Daughter's Untimely End.

Ready, Ky —"I was not able to do anything for nearly six months," writes Mrs Laura Bratcher, of this place, "and was down in bed for three months.

I cannot tell you how I suffered with my head, and with nervousness and womanly troubles.

Our family doctor told my husband he could not do me any good, and he had to give it up. We tried another doctor, but he did not help me.

At last, my mother advised me to take Cardui, the woman's tonic. I thought it was no use for I was nearly dead and nothing seemed to do me any good But I took eleven bottles, and now I am able to do all of my work and my own washing.

I think Cardui is the best medicine in the world. My weight has increased and I look the picture of health."

If you suffer from any of the ailments peculiar to women, get a bottle of Cardui today. Delay is dangerous. We know it will help you, for it has helped so many thousands of other weak women in the past 50 years.

STREET CAR SMOKES MAY BE PROHIBITED

ORDINANCE PASSES FIRST READING WITH TWO VOTING NO

FOLLOWS RECENT COMPLAINTS

Must Be Considered at Three Sessions Before Becoming Effective—Other Matters

If an ordinance placed on its first reading before the city council last night goes into effect smoking on street cars will be entirely prohibited Two members of the council Bradley and Nicholl voted against the ordinance on its first reading It will have to be voted on at three regular sessions before it is finally adopted and even then it must face the possibility of veto

The ordinance was introduced by Councilman Young and comes as the result of many complaints from ladies and others about tobacco smoke in the street cars Mr Young said that he himself rode downtown the other morning on the windward side of an eruption of cigarette smoke of such volume as would have made many ladies ill

The smoking ordinance was about the only enlivening feature of the meeting last night most of the time being taken up with checking the reports of the city officers for the past two months

Bids for the moving of the houses on the Seven Sisters block to the city s lots on Seventh street near the city farms were opened and the contract was let to A Drake at $149 for the entire job

Upon a motion by Councilman Reed it was voted to take out accident indemnity insurance on the men employed in the sewer works

SMALL HOUSE ON CANAL SCENE OF FIERCE FIGHTING

Is Captured From Germans By French After Severe Hand To Hand Encounter

By Associated Press

London Jan 8—The fight for Ferryman s House at Merckem on the Yser Canal provided one of the most stirring incidents of the recent fighting around Dixmude

Merckem is on the southern reach of the Yser a correspondent writes four miles or so east of the road to Ypres On the eastern side of the water is a house which on a good French road map may be found tagged Maison de Passeur—the Ferryman s House It is a relic no doubt of the days before the building of the narrow bridge that now spans the waters at this point

This bridge for some time had been a sort of no mans land It was commanded by heavy artillery on the French side and also by a machine gun battery on the German side The Germans occupied Ferryman House which they had turned into a small fort with their machine guns mounted at windows both upstairs and down

Neither side dared to destroy the bridge because each had hopes to use it in an advance The French finally decided that things would be easier if the Germans were driven out of the neighborhood and he made his plans to surprise them The venture was a rather risky one because of the vigilance of the German sentries and because the position was so thoroughly dominated by the machine guns

The colonel in charge asked for volunteers and selected from those who offered an even four hundred men One hundred of them were African troops, who are always eager for any work of exceptional daring

Not long after midnight the detachment started out on their mission They were discovered when they reached the bridge and the German machine guns opened fire at the end of the bridge The French troops sprinted through the hail of shot despite heavy losses and a fair proportion of them reached the house in two or three minutes Then it was a hand to hand fight The German fought first from their covering walls outside but were shot down, bayoneted or knifed The garrison retreated indoors and to the outbuildings all of which had been loopholed for use in case of attack The door fell before an African s axe The French troops dashed in using bayonets only Across the ground floor and up the stairs the conflict continued until the only enemies remaining were a little group in the attic who surrendered when they saw that resistance was useless

The winning of Ferryman s House removed the most advanced German position in this region and gave the allies command of a most useful bridge The lieutenant who carried out the raid has been recommended for a decoration

Wichita Falls, Texas, January 8, 1915

Several business men of Dallas are following an example set them by some Wichitans, and are donating park tracts to the city.

Cotton prices are the lowest in many years. Wheat prices are the highest in years. Wichita county has 100,000 acres sown to wheat.

In the list of moving picture titles suggested by the Times yesterday it inadvertently overlooked the famous series entitled "The Outbursts of Oscar."

The battle of New Orleans was fought 100 years ago today. Let us hope it will be at least another 100 years before the United States and Great Britain will be forced to fight each other.

The Thirty-Fourth legislature is to convene next Tuesday, January 12th. The first business of importance that is to be settled is the speakership. There are two candidates: Williams and Woods. Williams is an anti on the prohibition question, and Woods is a pro. Both candidates are claiming they have enough votes of members pledged to elect them, and doubtless this is true, but members of the legislature don't always carry out their pledges. The pros have a majority, though somewhat smaller than in the last legislature, and looking at it that way, it would seem that Woods should be elected. The trouble, however, with the pros has been that hey elect candidates to the elgislature who say during the campaign they are pros, but after they get down to Austin, some of them find excuses to give to the anti candidates for speaker their vote. Our own guess is that the anti candidate for speaker is going to be elected.

The men who are doing the fighting in the European war, and who are making targets of themselves, really have nothing against their enemies. They are merely fighting because their rulers have told them to fight, and to disobey orders would mean death. As proof of this, on Christmas day a bunch of British and German soldiers, facing each other on the line of battle, were on good enough terms to engage in a game of football, and at the end of the game, without getting orders from their superior officers, declared a further truce of two days. This, it seems, is very common along the fighting line—so common, in fact, that it has been necessary for a general order to be issued prohibiting this fraternizing with the enemy. If left to the men in the fighting ranks that war would come to a speedy close. The rulers and the money lords of Europe, however will not permit this. The man who figured it out and come to the conclusion that this European war was brought about by greed and jealousy of the money makers was not far wrong.

Now that the city council is about to prohibit smoking on street cars it seems to the Times that some plan should be adopted to prevent the loss of the snipes of those who have a partially consumed cigar in their faces when the car comes. In times like these, efficiency and economy bar the loss of even part of a smoke and the Times suggests that a receptacle be provided on cars where such snipes may be interned until the end of the ride. This of course might cause some confusion when a number of snipes are deposited therein but this could be obviated by having the conductor issue snipe-checks to the smokers, giving each back his own snipe when he gets off the car. This would prevent regular cigars from getting mixed up with the dematured hemp variety and would also keep teh conductor from iding away his time. The Times is heartily in sympathy with the proposed ordinance; it is opposed to the filthy tobacco habit and fights it continually, destroying large quantities of the weed each day.

ANOTHER SAD CASE.

The Wilson administration is "the greatest failure in the history of the republic." The Southern cotton growers have not made proper connections with the United States treasury. The new tariff robs the poor and enriches the rich. The small navy of war won't [illegible] orders from the governor of Texas. The government of the United States is a wicked thing to respect the obligation of treaties, especially when the coastwise shipping monopoly wants free tolls at the expense of the American people. The anti-trust laws are "barefaced fakes," and national bankers are telling the governor that the new banking and currency law "is going to prove a failure."

It is very, very sad, but it is especially sad in view of the fact that the governor of Texas "raised more than $10,000 for the Wilson campaign fund," and yet can not get a nickel's worth of satisfaction out of the administration.

We do not know what the governor can do about it, but he might try running for office in Texas on the Republican ticket. He is wholly in accord with Borah and Uncle Joe Cannon and since the Republican party bumped the colored brother there is no reason why a governor of Texas should not treat Republicans as social and political equals.

THE FRANK CASE.

Says the Memphis Commercial Appeal: "A detective went to Georgia, investigated the case and made up his mind that Frank was innocent. The detective's statement is knocked down because they say he did not point out who was guilty. This sort of reasoning would result in a man arrested being convicted of a crime unless he not only proved his innocence, but also found out who actually did the act." Editor Loyless of the Augusta Chronicle states that he believes Frank committed the crime. But he says further: "But we do not know it. We are not absolutely certain of it. There is in our own mind, as there is in the minds of thousands of others, that shadow of a doubt which would not permit us to see Leo Frank or any other man go to his death as long as that doubt exists." Here in America every man is presumed to be innocent until his guilt is clearly established in a court of competent jurisdiction. The trial judge, on a motion for a rehearing, said this: "I have given this question long consideration. It has given me more concern than any other case I was ever in, and I want to say right here, that, although I heard the evidence and arguments during those thirty days, I do not know this morning whether Leo Frank is innocent or guilty. But I was not the one to be convinced. The jury was convinced, and I feel it my duty to overrule the motion." Public opinion in all parts of the country says with emphasis that Leo Frank should not be hanged. Some say he should be released from custody. Others say he should be put in a felon's cell and await further developments. But all are agreed that he should not be put to death.—Waco Times-Herald.

BUYS TICKET HOME WITH 220 NICKELS

An aged woman in Fort Worth bought a ticket back to her old home with 220 nickels. Tremulously she took them out of the bag and laid them out on the lodge in front of the ticket window, and her dim old eyes watched the ticket seller as he carefully watched the ticket seller as he carefully counted them, fearful that he would find the nickels short. It requires very little imagination for one to look back over the days that have fled, and see the old woman toiling, stinting herself, starving her body, that her soul could feast upon the joyousness of Christmas back home with the girl or boy whom she loves so well, and maybe those sweet little grandchildren, who will climb upon her knees and twine their dimpled arms about her old wrinkled neck and cover her toil worn face with the pure kisses of innocent childhood. Let's hope that when she arrives at the coveted destination, that she finds there the love and the tender affection that her heart craves. How we long for love—the real kind in which there is no dissembling, the kind that is free from any tinge of selfishness, and after we have become gnarled and bent with the toil of fleeting years, how precious are the opportunities to sit in the corner by the fire with our grandchildren gathered about us, feeling that in their hearts is found that sweet interest born of pure love, a love due us for their happiness and comfort.—Cleburne Enterprise.

CITY PLANNING SPECIALIST MAY VISIT WICHITA FALLS

The times has received the following:

The Civic League had a large and enthusiastic meeting in the home of Mrs. Hunter Tuesday afternoon; this meeting closing the contest for new members was unusually well attended. A number of committees were appointed to look after the several different departments of the civic work.

A hearty indorsement was given to the suggestion of one of our councilmen that we get Mr. Kessler, the city beautiful specialist to visit us. This is an age of specialists and the Civic League is anxious to get the right plans to work by. We can profit by the lesson we find in the conditions in Dallas and other places.

Mr. Kessler tells us that each city presents its own unique problems which must be worked out with carefully formulated plans. And, since in all cities certain fixed conditions will be met a careful study is necessary, in order to harmonize the old with the new, and that he has found in many cases the clearing away and redoing represented much of the outlay.

Of course in dealing with existing conditions the financial considerations are of the utmost importance. Hence we see that it is not only more satisfactory but much cheaper in every way to do the right thing at first.

Since Wichita Falls has taken on the proportions of a city in a commercial way, let us get started right in providing parks and play grounds as well as establishing good sanitary laws and beautifying our homes, that we may make good our boast—of "the best built city in Texas."

MRS. J. A. KEMP, President Civic League.

MEXICAN NAVY APPEARS TO BE REMAINING NEUTRAL

By Associated Press.

Washington, Jan. 8.—The Mexican navy or part of it at least, has declared for neutrality, according to dispatches to the Gutierrez agency here which say four gunboats on the Atlantic coast have retired to a quiet cove off Yucatan to await the result of the battle between the factions. Dispatches to the state department, however, were interpreted as possibly indicating that part of the navy was preparing to move the seat of the Carranza government from Vera Cruz

At The Theaters

The Majestic

Four excellent single reel pictures are showing here today, "Shakeville's Reform Wave," featuring Sophie Clutts, Vic Potel and Harry Todd. "Countess Sweedie," an Essanay comedy with Wallace Beery, "The Peach on the Beach," a Kalem comedy and "The Fleur De Lis," a Biograph drama featuring Irene Howley.

The Lydia Margaret

Stanley and Sea, musical artists on the bill opening yesterday at the Lydia Margaret, have an act that was most pleasing to the large audience. They are skilled on almost any kind of musical instrument one could mention. The novelty act of the Sidonias received a large measure of applause in their clever sketch, "The Lady Artist and the Tramp." "The Mystery of the Sea View Hotel," a thrilling two-part detective drama is on today's picture program. "The Mystery of the Sea View Hotel" was written especially for Ben Wilson, new Universal star and hero of the well known "Cleek" series of detective plays produced by the Edison company. Mr. Wilson's natural attainments, combined with his experience, qualify him as few are qualified, to produce and act modern detective dramas.

The Empress

The Wichita Quartette, always a feature of the Friday nigh programs of the Empress, has an unusually good program tonight. The pictures include "Another Chance," a Majestic one-reel, a Keystone and "A Crook's Sweetheart" a two part Kaybee, featuring Leona Hutton, Lewis Durham and Gladys Brockwell. The Dip calls on Flora, the pal of Jim Flint, a crook, and begs her to marry him and go away. She refuses. Flint comes to the apartment and finds the "Dip" whom he openly insults. When Flint leaves, the younger man follows him. He finds that he has another sweetheart, Molly Ames; and leading Flora to Molly's house, he convices her that Flint is "not on the square" with her. Flora then agrees to marry the "Dip;" but, before leaving the city, she "gives away" her former pal and Molly Ames to the police. Remorse afterwards prompts her to try to save the young crook. The police get to him ahead of her however. Learning where Flora and the "Dip" are living, Flint—who has escaped from the deputy after being sentenced to the penitentiary—tries to take revenge. He is on the point of shooting the girl through a window, when he is shot and killed by a policeman.

The Gem

George Morgan, Louise Vale and Phil Robson play leading roles in a two-reel Biograph drama, "The Ticket of Leave Man." Bob Brierly visits London and meets Dalton, a crook who is in league with a counterfeiter named Moss. Bob befriends May Moss a tea garden singer and is caught in the meshes of the law by the cunning Dalton who tricks him into passing counterfeit twenty pound note. Bob is sentenced to serve four years in prison. Three years later discharged on a ticket of leave he secures a position in Gibson's bill-broking office. Dalton and Bob discover where Bob is working and plan to get him again in their clutches. But with the aid of Hawkshaw, the famous detective the crooks are rounded up after many thrilling developments, in which the Biograph players arise to their opportunity.

FIRE LOSS RATIO HEAVIER DURING 1914 THAN IN 1913

Special to The Times.

Austin, Texas, Jan. 8.—Although it will be impossible for many weeks to secure figures showing the fire loss ratio for the State during the past year it is the belief of experts that the ratio will be in excess of that of 1913. There have been several disastrous fires during the recent year and expenses have been unusually heavy on insurance companies.

In 1913 the fire insurance companies made some profit. Premiums amounted to $10,511,855 and losses to $5,237,628. The loss ratio was 49.8 per cent. At a loss ratio of 65 per cent the companies break even, as 35 per cent is figured for underwriting expenses. Some estimates of the loss ratio for 1914 reach 80 per cent.

Brownsville, Texas, Jan 8.—Harry T. Corbin of El Paso, consulting engineer for the United States boundary commission and a company of engineers are making observations on the lower Rio Grande to devise if possible a method of perpetuating the movable boundary line by storing flood waters, with a view to constructing an immense gravity irrigation project that it is estimated may cost from fifteen to twenty million dollars. An organized effort is being made in this section to have the government undertake the project. New treaties with Mexico will be necessary. The observation now under way will be made from the gulf to Devil's river.

Tonight at the Empress Theatre the Wichita Quartet will sing new and popular songs. 6 1tc

THERE IS JUST A STEP

Between yesterday and today' Yesterday it was Nineteen Fourteen, today it is Nineteen Fifteen Just one little figure changed the whole calender, and yet that one figure is another step forward The wheels of time, like the mill of God's move slowly but ever onward

Each succeeding year has found us improving our facilities, profiting by a continual study of our business, until Nineteen Fifteen found us with more orders on our books that we have ever had, and under these depressed conditions we are just a little egotistical, and feel like we deserve it, as our equipment is the very best

Those who profess to care nothing for the dead, and that it makes no difference about our cemeteries we have nothing to say, and don't care to meet with you in any relation whatever, but those who love, honor and remember, and who take pride in our silent city, we solicit your co-operation and patronage
